Texas Education Agency Pauses
A-F Ratings
for 2020-21 School Year.

-December 10, 2020

“...the pandemic has disrupted school operations in fundamental ways that have often been outside the control of our school leaders, making it far more difficult to use these ratings as a tool to support student academic growth. As a result, we will not issue A-F ratings this school year.”

-Commissioner Mike Morath

STAAR tests will proceed to provide critically important information about individual student learning.

-December 10, 2020

The Texas Education Agency will seek waivers of aspects of federal accountability requirements.
